Use and Care of Chamois Skins.

There are so many so-called chamois skins in the market, that look and work so near to goatskins, remarks the Carriage Monthly, that we are often at loss to secure what is really the genuine article. A true skin, if properly cured, is one of the most useful, and, at the same time, the most pleasant thing to have in our possession; we are, therefore, bound to try and secure one.

The best we have used, so far, are those which resemble the parchment order; there is little or no lint on them, and they seem to be all that can be desired in lifting the water when drying c2. A great many use an oil skin. We preser the other, as the oiled prevents the chamois from leaving a perfectly dry surface.

A chamois skin should never be left in the water after using, but should be wrung out and hung up to dry; spread out carefully, so as to leave no wrinkles; neither should it be used to wipe off color, as we have seen some painters do when striping or touching up; all paint stains not only make great hard spots on the skin, but help to wear it out scener. There is another thing that should be avoided in using the chamois, and that is, wiping the face and hands upon it when washing them. It was never intended that it should be used as a towel; there is always more or less soap remaining on the arms or about the neck, that is wined off on to the skin. which clogs it up and causes it to become greasy. You should never put a come greasy. You should never put a chamois skin into warm water, not at least in a greater degree than lukewarm; if you do, you will find it will all curl up and become tough and thick, useless for any purpose you may wish to put it to.

Now, if you should find a chamois skin that, to all appearance, has become ruined by grease, paint stains, or has been used for a towel until its original color has been lost, and it looks like a dirty old rag, and you are on the point of throwing it away, stop a moment, and see if we cannot, in a measure, bring it back so as to get good wear out of it before we finally discard it.

The plan we have adopted, when we

of it before we finally discard it.

The plan we have adopted, when we so unfortunate as to find one of that description, was to take a bucket of clean water, and, making it middling strong with ammonia, we have allowed the skin to soak in it over night; the next morning we have rinsed it out in pure water; after that, we use pleuty of pure white castile scap and water.

Deafness Can't Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure I safness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an influence condition of the much liming of the Enstachism Tube. When this tube gots includes, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entropy closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its mormal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which a nothing but an inflamed condition of the muchs surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot core by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure, Send for circular, free.

F. J. CHENEY, & Co., Toledo, O. The result was that we secured a very good skin again, and used it for some considerable time. It didn't take very long to do the whole business, probably a quarter of an hour or so. It more than paid for the trouble, for it really was a great deal better than when first used, as it became, through that process, what we might call thoroughly broken in, that means free from lint or other impurities.

The Hat Was Given.

A wager of a silk hat once cost many lives. It was in 1811, when Capt. De-tatur, of the United States Navy, comanding the frigate United States, met Capt. Carden, of the British Navy, commanding the Macedonia. It was st prior to the year 1812, and while just prior to the year talking about the chances, Carten said

"If you and I ever meet after hostilities are declared. I'll bet you a silk hat that the Macedonia captures the United tates."

"Pil bet you a silk hat that you don't," was the reply.

The two frigates met on October 25, 1812, and after a bloody fight the English flag was lowered. Decatur hastened on board the prize, and Carden tendered his sword. "D-n your sword, Carden," said ecatur. "I bet you a silk hat, and as we're a long way from a hatter, I'll take the one you weer." The hat was CATARRY IN THE HEAD.

SYMPTOMS OF THE DISEASE.—Duil, heavy headache, obstruction of the masal passages, discharges failing from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, musous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of ofensive matter, together with scale from there; the voice is changed and has a "masal twang"; the breath is offensive; smell and taste impaired; there is a sensation of dimness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, less understood, or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians.

COMMON SERSE

If you would remove an evil, strike at its root. As the predisposing or real cause of catarrh is, in the majority of cases, some weakness, impurity, or otherwise faulty condition of the system, in attempting to cure the disease our chief aim must be directed to the removal of that cause. The more we see of this odious disease, and we treat successfully thousands of cases annually at the invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, the more do we realize the importance of combining with the use of a local, soothing and henting application, a thorough and persistent internal use of blood-cleunising and tonic medicines.

In curing catarrh and all the various diseases with which it is so frequently complicated, as throat, bronchiad, and lung diseases, weak stomach, catarrasi deafness, weak or inflamed eyes, impure blood, ecrofulous and other taints, the wondering powers and virtues of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medcannot be too strongly extolled. It has a specific air-passages, promoting the natural secretion of their follicies and giands, thereby softening the diseased and thickened membrane, and restoring it to its natural, thin, deficate, most, healthy condition. As a blood-purifier, it is unsurpassed. As those diseases which complicate catarrh are diseases of the liming mucous membranes, or of the blood, it will readily be seen why this medicine is so well calculated to cure them.
